COURSE DESCRIPTION

In FREN 3060/4060, you will improve your French by speaking French in the classroom and by further developing proficiency in three other basic communicative skills—listening, reading and writing in the target language. The emphasis in this class is on speaking and understanding French. We will use Controverses and discuss a range of topics including friendship, study abroad, food, media and privacy, gender equality, globalization, immigration, bilingualism, film, and education. In this class, participation is crucial and will make up a big part of your final grade. You are allowed two unexcused absences; please note that excessive tardiness and absenteeism will result in a lowering of your grade. Attendance and participation are essential in a French language face-to-face classroom. Homework will be announced on Canvas. If you miss a class, check the announcement section and the updated syllabus on Canvas for homework assignments and materials covered in class. Don't be shy; participate and make an effort to speak French only in the classroom. Nota Bene: This syllabus is not set in stone. An updated version will be posted on Canvas on a weekly basis. Tutoring is available, hours and details TBA. I encourage you to make it a habit to go to the Language Lab regularly (Old Main 004) where you can watch TV5 Monde, listen to France Info, France Culture or RFI, watch French films, read L'Express and use the PCs. The Course Reserves department at Merrill-Cazier Library also holds a number of French films that you can check out. I strongly encourage you to keep up with events in France by reading publications such as Le Monde, Liberation, Le Nouvel Observateur, Le Point or by watching newscasts online, such as the Journal Télévisé on either TF1 or France 2.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

- Devoirs/Homework will be announced on Canvas after class. Homework later than a week will not be accepted.
- Exposés: you are expected to give 1 engaging, in-depth 20-minute exposé. A list of dates and topics will be distributed in class. Advanced students' presentations must contain an interactive, innovative group activity. They should be engaging and not solely be based on a Powerpoint presentation read out loud in the classroom. Advanced students are expected to engage their peers in a lively discussion on a topic previously discussed and that they researched. Contact me if you need help finding suitable topics for your presentation or if you need help finding materials or using resources on the French web. If you are using the internet to find sources for your presentations, consult library databases or traditional media sources (for instance Le Monde, Le Figaro, L'Express, Le Monde Diplomatique, Libération, Marianne, Le Nouvel Observateur), media press releases, company websites, governmental sites, rather than Wikipedia.

- Tests de vocabulaire: there will be eight chapter vocabulary exams.
- Cinéma: In this class, we will view and discuss Potiche (real. François Ozon, 2010) and Monsieur Lazhar (real. Philippe Falardeau, 2011). As part of the requirements, you will write 2-page reflection papers after viewing the films. To ensure that you improve your writing skills, I will ask you to submit a draft (un brouillon) before submitting your final copy. Please show your paper to a tutor before handing it in (tutoring hours TBA). When writing the paper in French, use Microsoft Office Word, set the language to French and do a French grammar and spelling check (correcteur d'orthographe) before handing in your papers. Don't forget to insert accents where needed (shortcuts or insert symbol).
- Oral Exams: For the midterm exam, you will view and discuss the great classic La Grande Vadrouille (real. Gérard Oury, 1966) in groups of 4-6 students. For the final exam, you will view and discuss the blockbuster Intouchables (real. Eric Toledano, Olivier Nakache, 2011) in groups of 4 to 6 students. Students enrolled in FREN 4060 will be expected to function as mentors and discussion leaders to those enrolled in FREN 3060 during exams as well as during the entire semester.
- As a student enrolled in FREN4060, you will be expected to take on a leading role in group activities and to guide group discussions. You will also be in charge of helping prepare your peers for both the midterm and final exams by developing relevant topics for discussion; answering their questions and helping them get ready for the oral exams.
