Course Description and Goals:

This term we will explore the kinds of thinking involved in watching popular movies. Movie watching demands practical thinking of the audience in two ways: on the one hand, movies typically culminate with an action, which allows the audience to understand the preceding scenes as parts of or steps toward that action or event. On the other hand, audiences understand what characters are thinking and feeling by watching them act and react. In order to analyze these modes of practical thinking, we will watch movies from the history of Hollywood and contemporary movies and consider them as works of popular art. In so doing we will contrast popular movies with another mode of practical understanding: psychoanalysis. In addition, we will be in position to think differently about what constitutes the movies as an artistic medium, about how genres are structured, about the role of memory in movie watching, and related questions. We will also read texts from the history of philosophy and film criticism and theory.

Course Objectives:

1. Learn to analyze and critically evaluate ideas, arguments, and points of view. We will be reading a number of critical and theoretical texts that offer different approaches to thinking about popular movies. We will devote ourselves to close readings of these different texts in order to evaluate the arguments and ideas they present.
2. Learn fundamental principles, generalizations, or theories. We will be reading a number of theoretical approaches to popular movies. We will learn to analyze these theories and to think about how our experience of particular movies and cultural artifacts shapes and guides our theories of them.
3. Gain a broader understanding and appreciation of intellectual-cultural activity (music, science, literature, etc.). We will be watching numerous movies, mostly from the history of Hollywood. Our focus will be thinking about how popular art works and how popular movies, as an art form has developed and changed over time.
4. Develop skills in expressing oneself orally or in writing. We will be developing skills in writing, especially in writing complex arguments. We will be writing shorter response papers and longer critical and theoretical arguments; we will also have multiple opportunities to revise our writing and learn to improve it as we work on it.

Required Texts:

Stanley Cavell, The World Viewed
Gotthold Lessing, Laocoön
Sigmund Freud, The Question of Lay Analysis
+ pdfs of all other readings will be available through Canvas

Requirements:

Students are required to read assigned material carefully, to attend class regularly, to participate in discussions, to attend movie screenings if possible, to watch all movies, to fulfill all assignments, and to participate in discussions on Canvas.

Readings have been assigned in large chunks on the course schedule and will be fine-tuned as we continue to work our way through the course. A good way to approach the assigned reading for a given week is to read as much as possible over the weekend in anticipation of Monday's class, then to carefully re-read some, or all, of the material as we work through it together over the week. This will allow you to read passages that intrigue or trouble you as slowly and carefully as they demand.

Regular class attendance and active class participation constitutes an important portion of the course grade; additionally, routine, thoughtful participation in class is the primary ground for rounding up, rather than down, any borderline course grades.

Screenings of the movies are on Wednesday evenings. Screenings are in Old Main 203 and will start at 7:00. There is much of value in watching these movies project onto a large screen and together with an audience. However, because everyone has complicated schedules, attendance at the screenings is strongly encouraged but not required. If you are unable to attend a screening, you are required to watch the movie prior to our discussion of it in class on Friday. All movies are on reserve at the library or available to stream via a link on the course Canvas site.

There will be regular short weekly responses of one to two pages throughout the term. In addition, there will be three longer papers. These papers will be at least five pages in length. You will first submit a full draft of each paper and then revise it before it receives a final grade. In addition, there will be ongoing discussion topics and threads on the course Canvas site. All students are required to write at least one post per week in the Canvas discussions.

Course Grade:

There are a total of 1000 points available to earn in this class. Grades are based on total points students earn over the course of the class.

A	95% or higher
A-	91%
B+	87%
B	83%
B-	79%
C+	76%
C	72%
C-	68%
D+	64%
D	60%

Papers: There are three longer analytic papers of at least 5 pages each required in the course. Each paper will have a first draft and a final draft to be handed in after incorporating feedback from the instructor and others. The first two papers are worth 200 points each. The third and final paper is worth 250 points.

Short Writing Responses: On weeks when students are not working on a longer analytic paper, there will be a short writing response due. Typically, short writing responses will be at 2 pages in length. Each short writing response is worth 25 points. There will be 8 short writing responses in the course for a total of 200 points.

Active Participation and Canvas Discussion: Students should attend class, participate in class discussion, and come prepared with questions and thoughts about the readings and movies. In addition, students should post at least once a week in the discussion threads on the course Canvas site. Participation in class and Canvas discussions is worth 150 points total.

Policy on Extensions and Grading:

All reasonable requests for extensions will be considered up until noon, one day before the assignment is due. Extensions will not be granted after that except in the case of emergency. Emergencies include such things as death, serious injury or illness to some member of one's family, one's circle of friends, or one's person. Writing assignments handed after the day and time due without an extension will be considered late and will be docked one third a letter grade for each day late.

University Policies & Procedures:

Academic Freedom and Professional Responsibilities

Academic freedom is the right to teach, study, discuss, investigate, discover, create, and publish freely. Academic freedom protects the rights of faculty members in teaching and of students in learning. Freedom in research is fundamental to the advancement of truth. Faculty members are entitled to full freedom in teaching, research, and creative activities, subject to the limitations imposed by professional responsibility. Faculty Code Policy #403 further defines academic freedom and professional responsibilities.

Academic Integrity – "The Honor System"

Each student has the right and duty to pursue his or her academic experience free of dishonesty. To enhance the learning environment at Utah State University and to develop student academic integrity, each student agrees to the following Honor Pledge:

"I pledge, on my honor, to conduct myself with the foremost level of academic integrity."

A student who lives by the Honor Pledge is a student who does more than not cheat, falsify, or plagiarize. A student who lives by the Honor Pledge:

- Espouses academic integrity as an underlying and essential principle of the Utah State University community;
- Understands that each act of academic dishonesty devalues every degree that is awarded by this institution; and
- Is a welcomed and valued member of Utah State University.

Academic Dishonesty

The instructor of this course will take appropriate actions in response to Academic Dishonesty, as defined the University's Student Code. Acts of academic dishonesty include but are not limited to:

- Cheating: using, attempting to use, or providing others with any unauthorized assistance in taking quizzes, tests, examinations, or in any other academic exercise or activity. Unauthorized assistance includes:
  - Working in a group when the instructor has designated that the quiz, test, examination, or any other academic exercise or activity be done "individually;"

- Depending on the aid of sources beyond those authorized by the instructor in writing papers, preparing reports, solving problems, or carrying out other assignments;
- Substituting for another student, or permitting another student to substitute for oneself, in taking an examination or preparing academic work;
- Acquiring tests or other academic material belonging to a faculty member, staff member, or another student without express permission;
- Continuing to write after time has been called on a quiz, test, examination, or any other academic exercise or activity;
- Submitting substantially the same work for credit in more than one class, except with prior approval of the instructor; or engaging in any form of research fraud.
- Falsification: altering or fabricating any information or citation in an academic exercise or activity.
- Plagiarism: representing, by paraphrase or direct quotation, the published or unpublished work of another person as one's own in any academic exercise or activity without full and clear acknowledgment. It also includes using materials prepared by another person or by an agency engaged in the sale of term papers or other academic materials.

Sexual Harassment/Title IX

Utah State University is committed to creating and maintaining an environment free from acts of sexual misconduct and discrimination and to fostering respect and dignity for all members of the USU community. Title IX and USU Policy 339 (<https://www.usu.edu/policies/339/>) address sexual harassment in the workplace and academic setting.

The university responds promptly upon learning of any form of possible discrimination or sexual misconduct. Any individual may contact USU's Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity (AA/EO) Office for available options and resources or clarification, leading to an informal resolution of the matter. Further information and forms for reporting an incident to USU can be found here: <http://aaeo.usu.edu>

Withdrawal Policy and "I" Grade Policy

Students are required to complete all courses for which they are registered by the end of the semester. In some cases, a student may be unable to complete all of the coursework because of extenuating circumstances, but not due to poor performance or to retain financial aid. The term 'extenuating' circumstances includes: (1) incapacitating illness which prevents a student from attending classes for a minimum period of two weeks, (2) a death in the immediate family, (3) financial responsibilities requiring a student to alter a work schedule to secure employment, (4) change in work schedule as required by an employer, or (5) other emergencies deemed appropriate by the instructor.

Students with Disabilities

USU welcomes students with disabilities. If you have, or suspect you may have, a physical, mental health, or learning disability that may require accommodations in this course, please contact the Disability Resource Center \(DRC\) as early in the semester as possible (University Inn # 101, (435) 797-2444, drc@usu.edu). All disability related accommodations must be approved by the DRC. Once approved, the DRC will coordinate with faculty to provide accommodations.

Diversity Statement

Emergency Procedures

In the case of a drill or real emergency, classes will be notified to evacuate the building by the sound of the fire/emergency alarm system or by a building representative. In the event of a disaster that may interfere with either notification, evacuate as the situation dictates (i.e., in an earthquake when shaking ceases or immediately when a fire is discovered). Turn off computers and take any personal items with you. Elevators should not be used; instead, use the closest stairs.
