Utah State University Department of Languages Philosophy & Communication Studies is hiring one H-1B nonimmigrant employee for the full-time position of Postdoctoral Teaching Fellow in Logan, Utah. The anticipated period of employment will be August 16, 2021 through August 15, 2024. The salary is $44,050 per academic year.

Primary responsibilities include, but are not limited to:

Teaching: 85%

Service: 15%

Expectations for Teaching (Relative weight = 85%)

Although specific teaching assignments can be adjusted due to departmental needs, the teaching load is one and a half times the normal faculty load. Key courses that the beneficiary will be expected to teach over a given year include: Small Group Communication (CMST 2120); Communication in Family Contexts (CMST 3120); and Advanced Interpersonal Communication (CMST 5110). In addition, she will help mentor students in the Communication Studies and Global Communication programs, helping with their practicums, student research, and other independent work. In addition, the following requirements are also expected:

- Continued development of teaching skills. Efforts to develop teaching skills, and to keep current on content in the field, bear out a dedication to high-quality teaching. Such efforts include attending training workshops on pedagogy and seminars that provide updates to current knowledge and trends in the discipline.
- Engagement with students learning outside the classroom. This may take many different forms such as involving students in scholarly activities, supervising independent studies, advising student organizations, or consulting with students regarding their evolving careers.
- Advancement of pedagogy for teaching within the field. Contributions might include such things as authorship of refereed articles on teaching, and development of peer-reviewed media packages or computer programs. These items represent creative endeavors and are critically important to developing a positive professional reputation in teaching.
- Participating in development of curricula. A department's academic program is ever changing and a teaching postdoc is expected to participate in curriculum development in a substantive and collegial manner. This includes development of your assigned courses in a fashion consistent with program learning objectives.
Expectations for Service (Relative weight = 15%)
The postdoctoral position also creates service-related experiences for the person filling this role. The Beneficiary will be expected to provide service to the department through committee work, such as participating in the committee to review student applications for the major.
